

One Call Medical Appoints Anthony Cuva as Chief Information Officer

Parsippany, NJ (January 5, 2009) - Anthony Cuva has joined One Call Medical (OCM), the nation's premiere leader in diagnostic testing for workers' compensation, as the company's Chief Information Officer.

"Tony's solid background as an IT strategist and his ability to implement solutions in diverse technical environments is the expertise we need to continue One Call's growth trajectory," said Don Duford, President and COO, One Call Medical. "He has a proven track record of delivering sophisticated products and services to a wide range of audiences and clients while providing cutting-edge technical support and guidance."

Cuva brings over 20 years of IT management experience with healthcare/employee benefits and property and casualty companies. Most recently, he was CIO for CIGNA Corporation's Intracorp. Prior to that role, he served as IT Senior Director for Group Insurance Claims and Information Management. He has also held positions in the Application Management Practice, Human Resources and Services, Integrated Care Unit Leader, and as Application director for CGI Systems.

"One Call is clearly the leader in managing diagnostic services, with a proven track record of innovation and outstanding results-driven services," said Cuva. "Continuing to lead with state-of-the-art technology is a critical part of One Call's ongoing expansion."

Recent technology enhancements to One Call's IT systems that Cuva will be working with include:

- Telephone system technology upgrades to support additional capacity expansion within One Call's three integrated call center operations.
- Implemented and improved high capacity redundancy technologies designed to insure uninterrupted operational business continuity during periods of power outages, weather or natural disasters.
- A new enterprise-wide scheduling system built on the latest technology platform which allows for future workers' compensation and group health expansion capacity.
- Successful certification for SAS 70 (Statement on Auditing Standards No. 70) Type II, the highest level of security and internal control certification for service organizations.

Cuva will be based in One Call Medical's Parsippany, New Jersey home office.
